Newsletter

Dear parents, carers and children,

Every so often our computers in school are rebooted from our remote ICT support centre. It doesn't happen very often and has never once happened in any play rehearsal which is my excuse for not contacting ICT4 and asking them to make sure it didn't happen to a particular laptop between 6.00pm and 7.15pm last night, we also didn't check the props we supplied properly (the ones the children made were fine) so hadn't noticed that the festival champagne flutes could fall apart. Therefore, all hiccups in the play, apart from a slightly premature fireman, were down to us; the children were nothing short of fantastic and it certainly was 'The Greatest Show' we have put on here since I have been here. Cathy Woolcock, chair of governors, thanked everyone last night but I will say again that your support at home for lines costumes etc. has been invaluable, none of it would have happened without the ambition, efficiency and nurturing qualities of, respectively; Miss McLennon, Mrs McCotter and Mrs Tate, a helping hand from Marazion school's music expert Mr McKenzie to mix us up and of course each and every one of the cast who moved us from tears of laughter, to tears of emotion, to tears of joy – what an achievement- Well Done All.

Many of the cast will now be preparing for the perfect follow up to the pressure of the performance with our trip to the Isles of Scilly and a forecast that, fingers crossed, looks ideal for downtime in paradise – there are few places more beautiful when the sun is shining. The bags are loaded on the bus – I think some are planning on stopping for longer than a week judging by the size of some of them (including Mrs Tate and Miss McLennon) – and there is a definite buzz of excitement in class.

Last week it was Kynance that were out and about and they too were blessed with the sunshine for the most part. On Monday they headed to Godrevy to do some rock pooling and also returned with a bag of rubbish after a beach clean linked to our PSHE topic of Footprints. Then Wednesday saw the start of their activity days with a visit to Trebah to look at the biodiversity of fauna there again linking nicely to our environmental theme – they also found time for a good splash in the sea. Thursday and Friday involved lots of outdoor adventure activities with some navigation and problem solving and of course the sleepover at the centre which looks a definite addition to our rolling programme of residential for all year groups. Only Poldhu will be left to go after next week so it definitely feels like the finishing line is getting closer.

There has been a lot to fit in and still some events coming up – see dates in this newsletter. On that note apologies for some of these dates not being here as early as they should have been it is here we first post all important dates with text messages closer to the time but we are aware that some were missed recently so sorry – especially those of you that find changing work commitments at late notice difficult. The weekend looks cloudy but dry before next week's sun so fine for completing any of the outdoor-based homework tasks. I am destined for a weekend inside as reports have to be written will have a trip out to Penzance to load the boat. For any of you heading to Worthy Farm or following proceedings on the screen I would definitely recommend seeing CMAT's performance tomorrow as we saw it on Tuesday at Falmouth Pavilions and it was brilliant – not quite 'The Greatest Show' but well worth a watch. Have fun whatever you do.

Mr Gardiner
