

Homework Summer 1st Half Term

Reading. Remember reading is probably the most important homework you can do. Try and read every night even if it is just for 10 minutes. Remember to record in your reading journal and take this into school so that your teacher can keep track of what you are doing. Sometimes it is also nice to have stories read to you (these count in your termly total).

Maths. Remember you also have a login for mathletics and you can practice all types of maths at home as well as play fun games. When you do particularly well you will be awarded certificates which we give out in celebration assembly. We also give out times table bands each week so if you haven't got them all yet keep practising.

Personal Moral Spiritual 	Be Clean. Now that we are allowed to go a bit further afield it will be interesting to see how our favourite places have changed. With less people visiting places it may be that they have been less affected by the mess that can get left behind. Maybe people will also have a new found respect for the natural world and look after it a bit better but I bet you will still find some places where the winds, tides and some thoughtless hands have let rubbish build up so this one's easy: get a pair of gloves (plenty in school if you need them) and a couple of sacks and 'Clean it Up!' Remember to try and reuse or recycle what you find and weigh how much you clear up - we may have a prize for the best cleaner! 	Birds in Spring There are many types of different birds being sighted now Spring is upon us and many of them have lots of hungry mouths to feed. Your task is to make a bird feeder out of materials of your choice and watch and record which birds visit your garden/outside area. If you want a really easy way to make a bird feeder I think Miss Mogridge still has a video lesson available to help you. Poundland and Wilko are good for cheap bird food and if you want my tip it would be to use sunflower hearts as they seem popular with just about every bird in Truro and maybe a little bowl of mealworms for those birds that prefer grubs. Before doing this task have a look on the RSPB site and follow advice on feeding birds e.g. how to feed nuts safely. 	Recycle and reuse We have done this before but it always produces some fantastic creations so we thought we'd do it again. It is good to put rubbish that can be recycled in special bags rather than in the general waste bin but it can be even better to recycle and/or reuse things yourself. You can turn old boxes into musical instruments or old plastic containers into toys. There are hundreds of ideas on the internet - what is the most creative way you can turn waste into a new product? Maybe combine this activity with Be Clean. 	SEEK it Capture It Who's feeling competitive?! Who hasn't discovered the wonderful SEEK APP? For those of you that haven't, SEEK is a free APP you can download onto a smartphone (or your mum's and dad's) that can be used to identify species. It's best for insects and plants as you can't usually get close enough to birds or mammals to photograph them! The challenge is who can identify the most species of wild plants this half term - I'm up to 62 at the moment but think a 100 could be possible. If you don't have access to a phone and the APP you could use a good old-fashioned guidebook. We will give awards for all of you that find 50+ species and 100+ species.

Our Topic	Links to books Make a 'dream jar' that could keep your dream safe for the BFG to store. What would you put in it to explain the dream? It could be a picture of an object, something to remind you of an event, or a small token or even colour.	Links to history Find out about a famous person who had a dream. They may be real or a character from a story, film or picture. Present what you know in a creative way. This could be as a small booklet, biography or infographic for example.	Musical links Make a list of songs and compositions that have dreams or dreaming as their theme. Make sure you explain the theme and make a note of all the people involved in the music. You could put them in a list from your favourite to the 'worst'!	Link to vocabulary We have been studying 'Lost Words' to do with dreaming. Are there any other words you think should be revived, reused and celebrated more often today? Mr. Gardiner's favourite is 'mellifuous' and Mrs Haddy likes 'vacuous'. Can you find any more? Don't forget to find out what they mean too!
